THE LIBERATOR.

Vol. IX. Boston, Massachusetts, [Saturday, March 19, 1831.]

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON AND ISAAC KNAPP, PUBLISHERS.

No. 12.

THE LIBERATOR IS SOLD AT fIVE CENTS EACH.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

IN ALL, 17,000 COPIES.

Will L. Garrison, Editor.

The Liberator is a weekly antislavery newspaper, founded in 1831 by William Lloyd Garrison. The text provided is a section from the newspaper discussing the condition of slavery and the need for immediate abolition. The text is a reflection of the Abolitionist movement's ideas and crusade against slavery in the United States. The text is a call to action, urging readers to support the cause of abolition and to take steps towards ending slavery. The text is written in a clear and concise manner, using language that is easily understandable to a wide audience. The text is a powerful tool for spreading the message of abolition, and it is a testament to the power of the written word in the fight against injustice.

The colored people of the United States are a separate and distinct element in the population of the nation, and from its very nature must be so regarded. They are a people of the same race, color, and language as the white people of the country; they have the same rights, privileges, and duties as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people; they are entitled to the same education and instruction as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people; they are entitled to the same education and instruction as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people.

The colored people of the United States are not a minority, but a majority of the population of the country. They are a majority of the population of the country.

I shall now proceed to mention several rules which regard the relation of master and slave.

The master's power is the only rule to the quantity and quality of food and clothing.

One of the most important rules of the colored population of the United States is the opinion of the colored population of the United States.

For the colored people of the United States.

Negro's Complaint.

To the Editor of the Liberator.

Sir:--A common complaining expression that I have heard from the colored people of the United States is that it is impossible for them to obtain the same amount of education as the white people. This is a fact, and it is the opinion of the colored population of the United States.

In conclusion, I may say that the colored population of the United States is a separate and distinct element in the population of the nation, and from its very nature must be so regarded.

F. H.

The Liberator.

C. D. P. of Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1831.

The colored people of the United States are a separate and distinct element in the population of the nation, and from its very nature must be so regarded. They are a people of the same race, color, and language as the white people of the country; they have the same rights, privileges, and duties as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people; they are entitled to the same education and instruction as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people; they are entitled to the same education and instruction as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people; they are entitled to the same education and instruction as the white people; they are entitled to the same protection and security as the white people.

I shall now proceed to mention several rules which regard the relation of master and slave.

The master's power is the only rule to the quantity and quality of food and clothing.

One of the most important rules of the colored population of the United States is the opinion of the colored population of the United States.

For the colored people of the United States.

Negro's Complaint.

To the Editor of the Liberator.

Sir:--A common complaining expression that I have heard from the colored people of the United States is that it is impossible for them to obtain the same amount of education as the white people. This is a fact, and it is the opinion of the colored population of the United States.

In conclusion, I may say that the colored population of the United States is a separate and distinct element in the population of the nation, and from its very nature must be so regarded.
MISCELLANEOUS.

MATTERS AND THINGS IN GENERAL.

Anecdote.—A Major of militia, somewhere in Pennsylvania, who had recently been to the service, being one day in the company of two or three of his friends, made a jest of the army. "We thought," said he, "to carry a little with us."

The "little" selected for the purpose was a canteen, and more than a little was taken. The Major, after a short passage of time, a store of hardtack and water, came to the conclusion that what he was carrying was too much of a little thing, and was disposed of the whole in the form of a little drink.

The Kanata.—There is a town in the Province of Ontario, Canada, called Kanata, which is the Indian name for Ottawa. The town is situated on the south shore of the Ottawa River, opposite the city of Ottawa, and is inhabited by a large number of Indians. It is a thriving place, and is noted for its beautiful scenery and its many pleasure resorts. Kanata is a popular resort for tourists and hunters, and is the headquarters of a large Indian reserve.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SINGULAR ACT.—Mr. W. H. S. Johanan, a well-known journalist and author, recently gave a lecture in a large city in the West, in which he made some very pointed remarks about the present government. "The government," he said, "is a failure. It is worse than a failure. It is a disgrace to the country. It is a crime against the people."

The lecture was highly successful, and the audience was enthusiastic in its praise of Mr. Johanan's eloquence and his courage in speaking the truth. The lecture was printed in the local newspaper, and was widely read and quoted. The government, it was said, was in a state of collapse, and the people were looking for a leader who would stand up for the cause of justice and freedom.

AMAZING EVENT.—In the town of Yorke, in the province of Ontario, there was recently a remarkable event. A man named John Smith, who had been missing for ten years, was found living in the town of Yorke, working as a laborer.

It was said that Smith had been missing since he had left home ten years ago, and that during that time he had traveled far and wide, living in various parts of the country. When he was finally found, he was living in a small cottage on the outskirts of the town, working for a living.

The town was overjoyed at the news, and a large crowd gathered around the cottage to watch the man who had been missing for ten years. Smith was greeted with cheers and congratulations, and the town held a great celebration in his honor.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE BIBLE.

The little finger on which all the rest are hung.

Then all the gold and gems.

That 'er in 'Mors' coffee shop, and last night with the bibs.

The earth one golden ball, and Diana of the Ephesians.

We, the sons of liberty, and Diana of the Ephesians.

Oh! why is she so beautiful?

I cannot blame his choice.

Nor can I dodge she will be wayed by that beguiling voice.

Thou art an excellent moral found in the following exposure of the fashionable hypocrisy which characterizes our great metropolis.

DOMESTIC ACIDES.

ON TUTH IN PARENTHESES.

If you are in a hurry, I can give you a recipe for a cake that is ready in five minutes. It is a simple mixture of flour, sugar, and milk, which is baked in a loaf pan.

Your charming boy is a funny one.

From Reverend Mr. Russell's.

Your daughters, too, what lives of this kind.

What hands for painters' easels! come here and kiss the infant, dear, committee of criticism.

You are very lucky, and if you are not, you can always sell your furniture.

Mr. Smith, who is a good judge of art, was asked what he thought of the new painting by Mr. Jones. "It is a fine picture," he said, "but I think Mr. Jones could do better."

A London paper says, "a young woman fell over the precipice at Stanhope Gardens, and was thrown to the bottom of the ravine. She was examined by doctors, and it is feared that she may not recover."

The government of Benin has made a capitulation to the British, and has agreed to surrender the capital to the British forces.

The government has been most active in its efforts to suppress the slave trade. It has sent out many expeditions to the coast of Africa, and has captured several slave ships. The government has also sent out several congregations of missionaries to Africa, and has established schools and missions in various parts of the country.

The government has also been active in its efforts to promote education. It has established many schools and colleges, and has sent out many instructors to teach the natives. The government has also established a system of public schools, and has provided for the education of the natives.

AMAZING EVENT.—In the town of Yorke, in the province of Ontario, there was recently a remarkable event. A man named John Smith, who had been missing for ten years, was found living in the town of Yorke, working as a laborer.

It was said that Smith had been missing since he had left home ten years ago, and that during that time he had traveled far and wide, living in various parts of the country. When he was finally found, he was living in a small cottage on the outskirts of the town, working for a living.

The town was overjoyed at the news, and a large crowd gathered around the cottage to watch the man who had been missing for ten years. Smith was greeted with cheers and congratulations, and the town held a great celebration in his honor.