The Liberator

[Letter from Mr. Guley, Washington, 23rd May, 1862]

Dear Sir,

The honor to acknowledge the receipt of the 12th, containing important queries in regard to the principles and tactics of the Secession, to which I desire to call attention of the Secessionists, on the conclusion of the war, to the principles and tactics of the Union.

Very respectfully,

[Signature]

[News of the Day]

In the present crisis, the Liberator, in common with all other journals of public opinion, is called upon to assume the responsibility of giving the true and unbiased account of the war, and to express the sentiments of the people of the Union, who are deeply impressed with the necessity of prompt and decisive action in the present crisis.

While the war is being prosecuted, it is the duty of all good citizens to support the government in its efforts to maintain the Union, and to resist all attempts at secession, without hesitation or delay.

In conclusion, I must say that the Liberator is determined to continue its publication, and to carry on its work of disseminating truth and justice, until the day of peace and prosperity shall come to the land.

Yours truly,

[Signature]
THE LIBERATOR.

THE LIBERATOR.

ADDITION OF SLAVES IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

On the 10th of May, 1834, a select committee of the House of Commons was appointed to consider the question of the addition of slaves to the British colonies. The committee was to report to the House the 28th of June, but was not called on to report until the 22nd of August. Mr. Wilberforce led the committee with great success, and by the 16th of September, the committee had completed its work and reported its findings.

The committee recommended that the addition of slaves to the British colonies be abolished, and that all existing slaves be freed by the 1st of January, 1838.

The House of Commons adopted the committee's recommendation by an overwhelming majority, and the act to abolish the slave trade was passed on the 27th of December, 1833.

This act was a monumental achievement in the fight against slavery, and it marked the beginning of the end of the slave trade in the British colonies.

Mr. Wilberforce was a hero in the struggle against slavery, and his work was recognized by the people of the world. He was a man of great courage and determination, and his efforts helped to bring about a great change in the world.

The addition of slaves to the British colonies was a great wrong, and it was right that they should be abolished. The work of Mr. Wilberforce and his colleagues was a great achievement, and it is a source of great pride to the people of the world.

The act to abolish the slave trade was a great step forward in the fight against slavery, and it is a testament to the power of human will and determination.

In conclusion, the addition of slaves to the British colonies was a great wrong, and it is right that they should be abolished. The work of Mr. Wilberforce and his colleagues was a great achievement, and it is a testament to the power of human will and determination.

The act to abolish the slave trade was a great step forward in the fight against slavery, and it is a testament to the power of human will and determination.
IMPORTANCE OF AGENTS.

Extract of a letter from the Under-Secretary of State for India to the Hon. Colonel Rowland, Dinsdale, dated London, May 23.

Nothing is more obvious than the advantage which we derive from the employment of able and devoted Agents, whose utmost efforts always tend to the promotion of our interests in the country. They are our faithful friends, who will fight for us and die for the cause of our independence.

The importance of Agents cannot be overestimated. They are the eyes and ears of the Government, who know the customs and habits of the people, and are able to give us the most accurate information about the political and military situation of the district.

It is on this account that the Government has always been particular in appointing Agents. They are chosen from among the most experienced and educated men, who have a deep knowledge of the country, and are able to perform their duties faithfully.

Gentlemen, I have the honor to inform you that the Government has decided to increase the number of Agents appointed in the district, in order to ensure a better control over the situation. They are to be appointed from among the most experienced and educated men, who have a deep knowledge of the country, and are able to perform their duties faithfully.

To the Public.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I am directed by the Secretary of State for India to acquaint you that all the Agents in the district are appointed by the Government, and that they are chosen from among the most experienced and educated men, who have a deep knowledge of the country, and are able to perform their duties faithfully.