SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1834.

A TREATY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND THE KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN. By Mr. Millard Fillmore.

We are authorized to publish the following document from the President, which has been delivered to him by his Secretary of State, Mr. Clay, as a draft of a treaty between the United States and the Kingdom of Great Britain. The object of the treaty is to establish a permanent and efficient system of commerce between the two countries, and to provide for the mutual rights and interests of the inhabitants of both nations.

The treaty contains several important articles, including provisions for the settlement of disputes, the establishment of a common courier service, and the mutual recognition of consular and diplomatic relations.

We trust that the Senate will give the treaty its due consideration, and that it will be ratified by both parties, thus affording a new era of peace and prosperity to the inhabitants of both countries.
