THE LIBERATOR.

VOL. VII. NO. 20.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1844.

COUNTRY IS THE WORLD—OUR COUNTRYMEN AND ALL MANKIND.

The Laborator.

[Article on abolitionism and suffrage rights, discussing the importance of voting rights and the need for universal suffrage.]

[News and articles related to the abolitionist movement, including reports on legislative actions and public speeches advocating for equal rights and voting reforms.]
THE LIBERATOR.

NEW ENGLAND.

The Liberator is a weekly abolitionist newspaper published in Boston, Massachusetts, from 1831 to 1848. It was founded by William Lloyd Garrison, who used it to spread the message of abolitionism and to criticize the hypocrisy of American society's treatment of enslaved African Americans. The newspaper was known for its radical stance against slavery and its commitment to equal rights for all people. Its pages were filled with articles, letters, and advertisements that advocated for immediate and unconditional freedom for all enslaved persons. The Liberator played a significant role in the abolitionist movement, helping to mobilize public opinion and inspire action to end slavery in the United States. It is considered one of the most important abolitionist publications of the 19th century. The newspaper's legacy continues to be remembered as a symbol of the struggle for freedom and justice.