THE LIBERATOR.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Mr. R. Brush, in his review of the "Cincinnati Enquirer," in the last number of the "Liberator," says, "Mr. Brush is a man of strong prejudices, and has a predilection for the abolition of slavery." We are not aware that Mr. Brush has ever said anything in favor of the abolition of slavery. He has, on the contrary, always been a strong advocate of the overthrow of the government of the United States, and of the establishment of a new government, in which he has a predilection for the abolition of slavery. He is a man of strong prejudices, and has a predilection for the abolition of slavery.

Various other topics are discussed in the newspaper, including legislative news, local events, and articles on various subjects such as education, morality, and politics. The newspaper also contains advertisements and notices for local businesses.

In addition to the articles and advertisements, there are several letters from readers express their opinions and views on various issues. These letters range from discussions on slavery and abolition to more personal matters such as family affairs and local events.

The newspaper also contains financial news, with several articles discussing the state of the economy and the effects of various policies and events on the economy. The newspaper also contains news from around the world, with articles discussing events in Europe, Asia, and other parts of the world.

Overall, the newspaper contains a wide range of topics and provides a snapshot of the political, social, and economic landscape of the time.
LITERARY, MISCELLANEOUS, AND MORAL.

A LADY TO HER HUSBAND.

Farewell, my dear husband.

I have been compelled to leave you, and I am determined to do so. I know that you will not approve of my decision, but I am resigned to my fate. I have decided to go to Mexico, and I will not return until I have achieved my goal.

I have long been a slave, and I am tired of living in poverty and suffering. I will risk my life and all that I have for the sake of freedom. I will not rest until I have secured my freedom and that of others like me.

I have already made arrangements with several abolitionists, and they will aid me in my journey. I will meet with many dangers and hardships, but I will not give up until I have reached my destination.

Farewell, my dear husband. I love you more than words can express, but I must go. I will write to you as often as I can, and I will think of you always.

LADY.

The END.
