DEBATE ON COLONIZATION, AT JULIUS.

Mr. Clay commenced his remarks, and said—

"Mr. President, I shall not make any attempt to argue the question, to prove the propriety or improbability of colonization. I am, however, desirous of stating some of the considerations which have led me to the conclusion that colonization is not a proper measure to be adopted, in the present state of the world. I shall content myself with a few remarks on the subject, and shall be satisfied if I can startle the Bacon upon the subject of the question. We have given, we believe, a faithful sketch of the various considerations which have influenced our minds in favor of colonization. We have endeavored to prove that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the country, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"I shall now proceed to state some of the objections which have been urged against colonization. The first objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the slave-trade. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the slave-trade, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The second objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Negroes. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Negroes, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The third objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Native Americans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Native Americans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The fourth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the white people. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the white people, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The fifth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the British government. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the British government, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The sixth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the American government. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the American government, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The seventh objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the foreign powers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the foreign powers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The eighth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Catholic church. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Catholic church, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The ninth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Protestant church. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Protestant church, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The tenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The eleventh objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twelfth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Presbyterians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Presbyterians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The fourteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Methodists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Methodists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The fifteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Baptists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Baptists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The sixteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Lutherans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Lutherans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The seventeenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The eighteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The nineteenth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twentieth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Presbyterians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Presbyterians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-first objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Methodists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Methodists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-second objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Baptists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Baptists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-third objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Lutherans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Lutherans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-fourth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-fifth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-sixth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-seventh objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Presbyterians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Presbyterians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-eighth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Methodists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Methodists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The twenty-ninth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Baptists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Baptists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirtieth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Lutherans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Lutherans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-first objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-second objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-third objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-fourth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Presbyterians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Presbyterians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-fifth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Methodists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Methodists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-sixth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Baptists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Baptists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-seventh objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Lutherans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Lutherans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-eighth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The thirty-ninth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The fortieth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-first objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Presbyterians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Presbyterians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-second objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Methodists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Methodists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-third objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Baptists. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Baptists, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-fourth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Lutherans. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Lutherans, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-fifth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Jews. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Jews, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-sixth objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Quakers. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Quakers, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-seventh objection is, that it is a measure which will promote the interests of the Episcopalians. We believe that it is not a measure which will promote the welfare of the Episcopalians, and that it is not a measure which is calculated to produce any beneficial results.

"The forty-eight objecti