THE LIBERATOR.

VOL. VI.

OUR COUNTRY IS THE WORLD—OUR LAW IS MAN AND ALL MASTERS.

SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1836.

THE LIBERATOR.

From the United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 13th.

Hon. Mr. Senator from Massachusetts:—I have the honor to forward the following communication from the Secretary of State, to the Senate of the United States:

Mr. President and Gentlemen:—I have the honor to transmit for your consideration, the several documents heretofore submitted to the Senate, and to request your advice thereon.

I am, &c.

(Seal) Washington, &c.

[Letter from Samuel J. Van Meter, Secretary of State, to the Senate of the United States, dated April 13, 1836.]
LETTER TO A PATRON.

To Mr. Alexander H. Stephens.

Maxwell, Va., April 14, 1862.

My dear Sir:—The late President of the United States has been the subject of many false and malicious statements. It is said that he was assassinated by Mr. Sec. Seward. The plot was to assassinate Mr. Seward, and for that reason the President was killed.

J. B. McCauley.

The Prisoner for Debt.

The Minister and the Money-Loaner.

The woven web of the weaver, the building foundation of the builder, and the ordered light of the one who drops the check to the other, is a lesson of the same kind in the golden ages of antiquity. The phrase is familiar and recognized as a metaphor. It is the same in spirit as the saying that "the pen is mightier than the sword." But the saying is based upon a false premise, and the phrase is as misleading as the saying.

The phrase is, in reality, a misnomer. The pen is not the mightier than the sword, but the sword is mightier than the pen. The pen is a tool of communication, and the sword is a tool of destruction. The pen is used to write, and the sword is used to cut. The pen is used to record, and the sword is used to destroy. The pen is used to communicate ideas, and the sword is used to destroy ideas. The pen is used to express thoughts, and the sword is used to destroy thoughts.

The phrase "the pen is mightier than the sword" is based upon a false premise, and the phrase is as misleading as the saying. The phrase is a misnomer, and the saying is a misnomer. The pen is not the mightier than the sword, but the sword is mightier than the pen.
