SAVAGLE ON SLAVERY.

J. Q. ADAMS’ SPEECH

On the 10th of May, 1833, Speaker of the House of Representatives, made the following remarks:

Mr. Adams stated that the resolution of the House was introduced by the Chairman of the Committee appointed to report on the subject of the slave trade. The President of the United States had made his views known on the subject in a message to Congress, in which he said:

"I have the honor to inform you, that the subject of the slave trade has been received by the Executive Department of the Government with the greatest anxiety and earnestness. The country is too much occupied with other important matters to permit of a full investigation of the subject at the present time. I therefore recommend the establishment of a committee of inquiry, to be appointed by the Senate and House, to report the results of their investigation to the Congress of the United States."
