ENGAGEMENT.

[Insert content here]
THE LIBERATOR.

THE REV. MR. MINERVA is now to receive the resignation. He said—There is a more need for him to be reminded of this, than perhaps he may be aware of. The great importance of the work, the great interest which it has in the interests of the United States, the great importance of the character of the man, and the great importance of the principles which he represents, all combine to make this an occasion of great importance. It is not every man who can be trusted to carry on the work with success. It requires a man of great knowledge, of great judgment, of great skill, of great energy, and of great perseverance. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to the principles which he represents, and who can be trusted to be true to the cause which he advocates. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to himself, and who can be trusted to be true to his country. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to his conscience, and who can be trusted to be true to his God. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to his friends, and who can be trusted to be true to his enemies.

Mr. Miner said—The great importance of the work, the great interest which it has in the interests of the United States, the great importance of the character of the man, and the great importance of the principles which he represents,
all combine to make this an occasion of great importance. It is not every man who can be trusted to carry on the work with success. It requires a man of great knowledge, of great
judgment, of great skill, of great energy, and of great perseverance. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to the principles which he
represents, and who can be trusted to be true to the cause which he advocates. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to himself, and who can be trusted to be true to his country. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to
his conscience, and who can be trusted to be true
to his God. It requires a man who can be trusted
to be true to his friends, and who can be trusted
to be true to his enemies.

Mr. Miner said—The great importance of the
work, the great interest which it has in the interests of the United States, the great importance of the character of the man, and the great importance of the principles which he represents,
all combine to make this an occasion of great importance. It is not every man who can be trusted to carry on the work with success. It requires a man of great knowledge, of great
judgment, of great skill, of great energy, and of great perseverance. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to the principles which he
represents, and who can be trusted to be true to the cause which he advocates. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to himself, and who can be trusted to be true to his country. It requires a man who can be trusted to be true to
his conscience, and who can be trusted to be true
to his God. It requires a man who can be trusted
to be true to his friends, and who can be trusted
to be true to his enemies.