ARTICLES OF OPPOSITION.

NEW-ENGLAND LEGISLATURE.

House of Representatives, Jan. 11.

The subject of opposition was more or less discussed on the subject of the passage of the bill for the reduction of the state debt. The committee on the public debt appeared to have been more interested in the question, and in the result, than in the department of the house, and the report of the committee was received with less enthusiasm than usual. The subject of the bill was then referred to the committee on finance, but it was not expected that much progress would be made in the consideration of the measure.
