THE LIBERATOR

VOL. VIII.

OUR COUNTRY IS THE WORLD, OUR COUNTRYMEN ARE ALL MANKIND.

FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1838.

HORSEY, MASSACHUSETTS.

Abolition in the government. There are no words in the Constitution that can be interpreted to mean, in the sense of which it is understood by the people, that Congress is made up of the people, and that the people may do as they please with the government. Congress has no power to do as it pleases, but only as Congress, and the people must do as they please with Congress. The Constitution was intended to be the organic law of the government, and the people have the right to interpret it as they please. The Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and Congress has no power to interpret it, except as Congress. Congress has no power to interpret the Constitution, except as Congress. The Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and Congress has no power to interpret it, except as Congress. Congress has no power to interpret the Constitution, except as Congress.
The text on the page is too small and not legible to transcribe.