COMMUNICATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LIBERATOR.

SIR,-The subject of the abolition of slavery is now more widely diffused over the Union than ever before; and it is to be feared that the results of this new enterprise will not be favorable. The slaveholder, however, is not aware of the danger he is in, and he is not aware that the powers of the government are sufficient to deal with the evil. The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, last year, made a full statement of the facts, and he said: It is the duty of the President to use all the powers of the government, to put down the evil. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely. The President has the power to act, and he has the power to act safely.