COMMUNICATIONS.

One of this. To tell these objections the pressure of the times is powerful, and there is no way of knowing how far the prejudices of the old and young, and the interests of the community, will carry us. They have been in full force, and have established a new era in the history of the world, and a new age in the history of the human race. They have been in full force, and have established a new era in the history of the world, and a new age in the history of the human race. They have been in full force, and have established a new era in the history of the world, and a new age in the history of the human race. They have been in full force, and have established a new era in the history of the world, and a new age in the history of the human race. They have been in full force, and have established a new era in the history of the world, and a new age in the history of the human race.
An Annual Meet. (Continued.)

Recognition of his Indigence. (Continued.)

Protestant Ex-War.

The American Anti-Slavery Society, the official organ of the anti-slavery party in the United States, has published a circular letter to its members, which has been widely circulated throughout the country. The letter is signed by a number of prominent members of the society, including Henry C. Meiggs, D. P. W. Seward, and other well-known abolitionists. The letter expresses the views of the society on the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which declared the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional. The society states that it will continue to work for the abolition of slavery, and that it will not be deterred by the decision of the court.

Provisions of the new constitution. (Continued.)

The new constitution of the United States, which was adopted at the convention held in Philadelphia, has been widely reported in the press. The constitution contains a number of provisions that are of particular interest to the anti-slavery movement. One provision provides for the establishment of a national board of education, which will be responsible for the supervision of public schools throughout the country. The board will be composed of four members, appointed by the President, and approved by the Senate.

Anti-Slavery Convention.

A committee of the Anti-Slavery Convention, held in New York, has issued a circular letter to its members. The letter expresses the views of the committee on the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which declared the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional. The committee states that it will continue to work for the abolition of slavery, and that it will not be deterred by the decision of the court.

Newspaper Notices.

The following notices have been published in the newspapers:

Worcester Free Press.

In memory of the late Mr. John J. B. Atwood, of the Boston, Mass., a copy of the Worcester Free Press, dated May 12, 1860, is now in the possession of the late Mr. John J. B. Atwood. The copy was presented to the late Mr. John J. B. Atwood by the editor of the paper, and was a copy of the newspaper in which Atwood's funeral services were conducted.

Temperance Boarding House.

The following report has been published in the newspapers:

Temperance Boarding House, James W. Harris.

James W. Harris, of South Carolina, has opened a temperance boarding house in the city of New York. The house is located at 123 Main Street, and is open to all persons desiring to make use of the establishment. The house is furnished with all necessary conveniences, and is well supplied with food and drink.

Political Reform.

A committee of the Anti-Slavery Convention, held in New York, has issued a circular letter to its members. The letter expresses the views of the committee on the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, which declared the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional. The committee states that it will continue to work for the abolition of slavery, and that it will not be deterred by the decision of the court.

MARRIED.-The marriage of Mr. John J. B. Atwood, of the Boston, Mass., and Miss Sarah A. Atwood, of the same city, took place on the 12th of May, 1860. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. John J. B. Atwood, of the Boston, Mass., and the couple will make their home in the city of New York.