GOD'S TRUE TEMPLE 1

BY JAKES RICHARDSON, JR.

Not by wast piles of sculptured stone, uprearing
Their measure towers and frested spires on hig
With splendid pony and costly price, appearing
To scorn the poor and humble passer by:

Not by the rich and swelling congregations
That gaily crowd the broad, luxarious sisles;
Not by the pulpit's eloquent orations,
And melody that sense and soul beguites:

And emicofy that sense and soal begulier.

Not by most beguiner ities, now by receiving.

The holy bread and consecrated copy;

Not by vined deterious and long received believing.

Do we the temple of our God build up.

For God's true temple is thorough.

That now unfinished and in rain lier;

And nees it up in glory to the skire.

And these it up in glory to the skire.

Wherever were the entire's, the poor, the lovity.

Or fall the rempted, first and a suphil mere;

There, with a purpose high and a spirit holy,

We'll haste to succer these our Faller's non
