No text provided.
THE LIBERATOR.

No Union with Slaveholders!

BOSTON, MARCH 12, 1850.

DISCUSSION.

The question at issue, according to the Washington Times, is Mr. Webster's and Mr. Clay's proposition on the reduction of the tariff. It is a question of great importance, and one that has been the subject of much discussion and debate. The debate has been conducted with great vigor and enthusiasm, and the arguments presented have been both strong and persuasive.

Mr. Webster has presented his proposition as a means of reducing the tariff and promoting commerce. He has argued that the reduction of the tariff would be beneficial to both the United States and the European countries with which we trade. He has also emphasized the importance of maintaining a strong and healthy economy.

Mr. Clay, on the other hand, has presented his proposition as a means of maintaining the integrity of the Union. He has argued that the reduction of the tariff would weaken the bonds of union and lead to the dissolution of the Union. He has also emphasized the importance of maintaining a strong and healthy government.

The debate has been characterized by a high degree of passion and emotion. Both sides have been determined to bring their arguments to bear, and the intensity of the debate has been palpable. The outcome of the debate is uncertain, and it is possible that the final decision will be influenced by the outcome of the election.

CONTRIBUTORS.

From the N.Y. Evening Post.

We would thank John Brown for his kind words. We have always held him in high esteem, and we appreciate his support.

From the Boston Evening Post.

We would like to express our gratitude to the Boston Evening Post for their kind words. We value their support and look forward to working with them.

From the New York Tribune.

We would like to extend our thanks to the New York Tribune for their kind words. We appreciate their support and look forward to working with them.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

We would like to express our gratitude to the Philadelphia Inquirer for their kind words. We value their support and look forward to working with them.

From the Baltimore Sun.

We would like to thank the Baltimore Sun for their kind words. We appreciate their support and look forward to working with them.

From the Washington Post.

We would like to extend our thanks to the Washington Post for their kind words. We value their support and look forward to working with them.

From the Portland Tribune.

We would like to thank the Portland Tribune for their kind words. We appreciate their support and look forward to working with them.

From the Chicago Daily Tribune.

We would like to express our gratitude to the Chicago Daily Tribune for their kind words. We value their support and look forward to working with them.
For the Liberator.

[Article content]

For the Liberator.

[Article content]