LETTER TO A CLERKSMAN.

PROGRESS IN THE RECONSTRUCTION OF OUR GOVERNMENT.

WASHINGTON, April 29th, 1865.

My dear Clerksmanship,

I trust this letter finds you in good health and spirits. As I write, the news from the South is still very uncertain. The Union forces are advancing slowly, but surely. The Confederate government is in ruins, and the people are in great need of guidance and direction. The task of reorganizing the South is enormous, but I believe it can be accomplished with the help of a wise and just administration.

Yours truly,

P.S. I have enclosed a copy of the latest newspaper article on the situation in the South. Please read it carefully and let me know your thoughts.
