THE LIBERATOR.

THE PROPERTIES OF AMERICAN SLAVERY.

The Constitution of the United States, in that portion of it which is dedicated to the subject of slavery, declares that the power of the Federal Government shall extend to all cases in which, by the Constitution of the United States, the use of force and arms shall be necessary to maintain the Constitution of the United States. This provision is intended to be interpreted as a declaration of the right of the United States to use force and arms in the maintenance of the Constitution of the United States.

The duty of the Federal Government to maintain the Constitution of the United States is a duty of the highest importance. The Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land, and the duty of the Federal Government to maintain the Constitution of the United States is a duty of the highest importance.
