THE LIBERATOR.

THE LIBERATOR.

No Union with Slavery.

BOSTON, FEBRUARY 8, 1855.

LETTERS OF NOB. A. BIBB.

To the Editor of the Liberator.

Visit to the South.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

To the Editor of the Liberator.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

The writer of the letter to the Liberator, under date of February 3, which has just been published, is now on a visit to the South. He is the first American, and the first colored citizen, who has ever gone on purpose to the South for the purpose of making a public tour through the slave States, and addressing the public. The visit was inaugurated with a speech at New Orleans, which was attended by a very large audience, and which was highly received. The writer is a man of high character, and of great ability, and it is to be expected that his tour will be a blessing to the country.
...