THE LIBERATOR

BOSTON, DECEMBER 26, 1852.

PATRONIZE THE BARBER!

The 18th Session of Congress, as early in 1853, will afford ample opportunities for the consideration and passage of measures of a philanthropic character. The legislature, therefore, will be called upon to do its best to forward the interests of humanity. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The law should provide for the education of the children of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed. The legislature should provide for the support of the poor, and should provide for the employment of the unemployed.