THE LIBERATOR.

MISS HOLLADY OF WESTPORT NEW YORK.

Mr. S. Jackson, of Westport, N. Y., writes:

Our society has passed out of some of the most interesting phases of a club in which Mrs. Holladay is very prominent, without her being entirely unaccounted for. She has a talent for dancing, and is an accomplished musician. But her greatest love is for the stage, and she has been a favorite there for many years. She is justly admired for her beauty and grace, and is universally respected for her talent and accomplishments.

SOUTHERN CRIME AND HUNGER.

NEW SERIES—CHAPTER IV.

A Belle Regrade—A gentleman from New Orleans sends us a letter from the South, in which he describes the prevailing state of affairs in that section of the country. He says that the negroes are living in the most miserable condition, and that the whites are in a state of great want. The government has been unable to provide for the support of the negroes, and the whites are left to shift for themselves. The gentleman concludes by expressing the hope that the situation will improve, and that the government will take the necessary steps to alleviate the sufferings of the people.

THE KIDNAPPED.

THE RANSOM:

Being the Personal Narrative of Two Girls and Their Wise Plan for Securing Their Release.

With an Introduction by E. D. B. AND

Biographical Sketch of the Author, by A. E. T. W.

PETER PILL was released in New York City, on the 25th of last month, after being kidnapped by the notorious L. G. W. A., and held in the city of Cincinnati. He had been in the possession of the kidnappers for six months, and was treated with great severity. He was released on a certain condition, and will be heard of no more. The kidnappers may be congratulated on their success, and the public is warned against the practice of kidnapping.

THE EVANGER.

Mr. G. B. P. D., of Philadelphia, writes:

I have just received a letter from my friend, Mr. G. B. P. D., who is now in California. He tells me that the climate is very pleasant, and that he is enjoying good health. He says that he has been in California for some time, and that he is very fond of the country. He concludes by expressing his gratitude for the kind treatment he has received, and by mentioning his hope of returning to his old home in the near future.
