REPUBLIC OF OCEANIA.

ARMS OF THE REPUBLIC.

In the late number of the Liberator, we published an appeal to the world, in which we stated that the people of the United States had a duty to perform, in consequence of the existence of a Republic of Oceania, which they were not aware of, but which they ought to know about. In the present number, we publish a letter to the Secretary of State, in which we state that the people of the United States have a duty to perform, in consequence of the existence of a Republic of Oceania, which they are not aware of, but which they ought to know about.

The Republic of Oceania is a vast territory, which extends from the equator to the north latitude of 40 degrees, and from the west longitude of 120 degrees to the east longitude of 180 degrees. The population of the Republic is estimated at 100,000,000, and the capital is a city called New York. The government of the Republic is a federal government, and is composed of a president, a vice-president, and a congress.

The president of the Republic is Mr. Lincoln, and the vice-president is Mr. Johnson. The congress consists of a senate and a house of representatives. The senate consists of 100 members, and the house of representatives consists of 500 members.

The Republic of Oceania was established in 1848, and has since that time been a powerful nation. It has a navy, and is a member of the League of Nations.

The people of the United States are therefore under a duty to the people of the Republic of Oceania, to aid them in their struggles for freedom, and to assist them in their efforts to maintain their independence.

We publish this letter in the hope that the people of the United States will be moved to take steps for the benefit of the people of the Republic of Oceania.

The letter is as follows:

TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

Sir: I address myself to you in the hope of obtaining some information respecting the Republic of Oceania. I understand that this Republic is a powerful nation, and that it is a member of the League of Nations. I am therefore under a duty to the people of the Republic to aid them in their struggles for freedom, and to assist them in their efforts to maintain their independence.

I have been told that the people of the Republic are suffering under great oppression, and that they are in want of assistance. I therefore request you to ascertain what can be done for them, and to communicate the result of your inquiries to me.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
