Refuge of Oppression.

Our first great prize is the universal and complete freedom of the African, and his separation from the influence of European civilization until he shall be prepared to take care of himself and be a useful member of society. We are not blind to the fact that the negro is inferior in some respects to the white man, but we are not blind to the fact that he is superior in others. We believe in the equality of all races, and we shall not rest until every man is free, and every woman has the same rights as her brother.

The Black Record of Infamy.

We have seen in the newspapers of the day, and we have read in the journals of the past, that the negro is a degenerate race, a degenerate people, a degenerate civilization. We have seen that he is a slave, a serf, a chattel, a thing to be bought and sold, a thing to be whipped and tortured, a thing to be degraded and degraded. We have read that he is a brute, that he is a beast, that he is a brute beast.

We have seen that he is a slave, that he is a serf, that he is a chattel, that he is a thing to be bought and sold, that he is a thing to be whipped and tortured, that he is a thing to be degraded and degraded. We have read that he is a brute, that he is a beast, that he is a brute beast.
