THE DEATH OF THEODORUS PARKER.

The death of Theodore Parker, the great reformer and abolitionist, took place at his home in Boston, on the evening of the 27th ult., of consumption.

He was born in Danvers, Mass., December 17th, 1810, and was the second son of Dr. Jonas Parker, one of the first Unitarian ministers in America.

He received his early education at the Danvers Academy, and later attended Harvard College, where he was graduated in 1830.

He then entered the law profession, but soon abandoned it in favor of a career in religion.

He became a prominent figure in the Unitarian Church, and was one of the leading abolitionists of his time.

He was a close friend of Harriet Beecher Stowe, and was frequently referred to as her "Great Uncle Sam."