Refuge of Oppression.

[Article about the need for freedom for those in bondage]

Selections.

The President of the United States.

[Letter to the President regarding the need for action on slavery]

Notes from the Capital.

[News from Washington, D.C.]

Another Bank Extermination.

[Comment on the failure of the banks]

Refuge of Oppression.

[Continuation of the article about the need for freedom for those in bondage]
THE LIBERATOR

THE BIDEN QUESTION

Whether Mr. Lincoln's administration will succeed in its protracted war with the slaveholding states, is a question which needs to be settled, and which, when settled, must be settled by the ballot-box. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Union, or the destruction of the Constitution. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Constitution, or the destruction of the Union.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority. The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.

THE BIDEN QUESTION

Whether Mr. Lincoln's administration will succeed in its protracted war with the slaveholding states, is a question which needs to be settled, and which, when settled, must be settled by the ballot-box. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Union, or the destruction of the Constitution. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Constitution, or the destruction of the Union.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority. The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.

THE BIDEN QUESTION

Whether Mr. Lincoln's administration will succeed in its protracted war with the slaveholding states, is a question which needs to be settled, and which, when settled, must be settled by the ballot-box. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Union, or the destruction of the Constitution. It is a question which, if settled otherwise, will result in the destruction of the Constitution, or the destruction of the Union.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority. The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.

The question is now before the people of the United States, and it is a question which they must settle by the vote of the majority.