Refuge of Oppression.

SOUTHERN HUMILITY AND PLEASURABLE SENSATIONS.

The cotton kingdom seems to be in a state of great contentment and prosperity. The people are busy, the crops are abundant, and the slaves are happy. The prosperity of the South is due to the policy of the government, which has been to maintain a free and independent people. The government has been successful in its efforts to maintain a free and independent people, and the people have been successful in their efforts to maintain a free and independent government. The South is a refuge for the oppressed, and the people are content with their condition. The government is strong and the people are happy. The Liberator

A MEMOIR OF OUR CIVIL WAR

President of Boston, May 4, 1861.

Ireland say:

To every man of honor, to every man who is not afraid to stand up for his country, in the hour of need, welcome.

But to him who is afraid, to him who is not willing to fight for his country, to him, who is ready to yield, to him we say:

A place in the smoke, a place in the fire.

And to all who are willing to fight, to all who are willing to stand, to all who are willing to die for their country,

we say:

To every man of honor, to every man who is not afraid to stand up for his country, in the hour of need, welcome.
