Refuge of Oppression.

SLAVERY IN THE SOUTH.

SLAVERY, OR THE WHOLE.

SELECTIONS.

SLAVERY. OR THE WHOLE.

SLAVERY.

SLAVERY.

SELECTIONS.

SELECTIONS.

SELECTIONS.

SELECTIONS.

SELECTIONS.

SELECTIONS.
DECEMBER 13.

THE LIBERATOR.

CONFIRMATION OF SLAVERY.

The course of the war has been slow and steady, and the general impression is that it is likely to continue so. On the one hand, the Union is not strong enough to carry out its design, and the seceded States are not strong enough to resist it. On the other hand, the war is not likely to cease until one or the other side is broken in spirit. The Union is not likely to give up the war until it has won, and the seceded States are not likely to give it up until they have lost. The war is not likely to cease until one or the other side is broken in spirit.

THE CAUSE OF THE WAR.

We are told that the war is being fought for the cause of the Union. This is true, but it is not the whole cause. The war is also being fought for the cause of freedom. The Union is the cause of freedom, and freedom is the cause of the Union.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

To the Memory of the late President of the United States.

In the late President Lincoln had the great honor of being our guide and leader. He was a man of great intelligence, and was a man of great capacity. He was a man of great moral force, and was a man of great integrity. He was a man of great courage, and was a man of great perseverance. He was a man of great sweetness, and was a man of great kindness. He was a man of great wisdom, and was a man of great understanding. He was a man of great justice, and was a man of great equity. He was a man of great generosity, and was a man of great liberality. He was a man of great magnanimity, and was a man of great nobility. He was a man of great piety, and was a man of great devotion.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

In the U. S. Senate, Monday, Dec. 2, 1862.

The Senate of the United States was in session. The President of the Senate took the chair, and the roll was called. The President then called for the journal of the Senate, and the journal was read and approved. The President then proceeded to lay before the Senate the message of the President of the United States, and the message was read and discussed. The President then called for the orders of the Senate, and the orders were read and discussed. The President then called for the reports of the committees of the Senate, and the reports were read and discussed. The President then called for the bills and resolutions of the Senate, and the bills and resolutions were read and discussed. The President then called for the motions and resolutions of the Senate, and the motions and resolutions were read and discussed. The President then called for the adjournment of the Senate, and the Senate adjourned.

LETTER TO GENERAL McCLELLAN FROM W. H. RAWLINS.

The undersigned, W. H. Rawlins, is a native of the state of New York, and a resident of the city of New York. He is a man of great intelligence, and is a man of great capacity. He is a man of great moral force, and is a man of great integrity. He is a man of great courage, and is a man of great perseverance. He is a man of great sweetness, and is a man of great kindness. He is a man of great wisdom, and is a man of great understanding. He is a man of great justice, and is a man of great equity. He is a man of great generosity, and is a man of great liberality. He is a man of great magnanimity, and is a man of great nobility. He is a man of great piety, and is a man of great devotion.

PRIVATE TUTOR.

The undersigned, W. H. Rawlins, is a native of the state of New York, and a resident of the city of New York. He is a man of great intelligence, and is a man of great capacity. He is a man of great moral force, and is a man of great integrity. He is a man of great courage, and is a man of great perseverance. He is a man of great sweetness, and is a man of great kindness. He is a man of great wisdom, and is a man of great understanding. He is a man of great justice, and is a man of great equity. He is a man of great generosity, and is a man of great liberality. He is a man of great magnanimity, and is a man of great nobility. He is a man of great piety, and is a man of great devotion.