The Liberator

May 9, 1855

The Constitution Extinguished. The Constitution, the title page for this issue of The Liberator, is a political document that was written in 1787 and adopted in 1788. It serves as the foundational legal framework for the United States of America.

The editor of The Liberator, William Lloyd Garrison, was a prominent abolitionist and a leader in the movement to end slavery in the United States. His newspaper played a key role in the abolitionist movement and was one of the most influential newspapers of the 19th century.

The Liberator was known for its strong anti-slavery stance and was a leader in the废除奴隶制度 movement. The newspaper was published from 1831 to 1865 and was a key voice in the fight against slavery.

The Liberator was instrumental in the spread of abolitionist ideas and played a significant role in the abolitionist movement. The newspaper's influence extended far beyond its readership and helped to galvanize support for the cause of abolition across the country.
A CHARGE TO THE LITIGANTS.

A speech delivered before the Convention of the Liberty Party in the state of New York, on the 29th of April, 1849.

"Your cause is one of principle, and is for the welfare of the whole human family. Therefore, let us not, by our own errors and dissipations, fall into the very snares and meshes which we seek to destroy. Let us be watchful and wise, and keep the good old principles of your fathers."
