Volume XXXII. No. 61. Boston, Friday, December 19, 1862. Whole No. 1669.

Selections.

The President's Plan Examined.

What does the President propose? In proposing Congress the adoption of a plan of procedure for the better carrying into effect of the recent acts of Congress, and for the military and civil organization of the country, the President, it is apparent, has been actuated by a desire to use all possible means to subdue the rebellion. The result of the election of the recent Congress, and the feeling manifested for the President by the people of the country, are the principal grounds of his action, and the motive has been well considered. The President is actuated by the policy of the party in power, and the action of the people is the reason of his course. The President's plan is the result of the election of the recent Congress, and the feeling manifested for the President by the people of the country, and the action of the people is the reason of his course.

Colored Soldiers and Sailors.

There are now more than 10,000 colored men in the service of the United States, and they are organized into regiments and companies, and are under the command of officers of the United States. The President has directed the appointment of colored officers, and the appointment of colored officers in the service of the United States is the result of the action of the recent Congress, and the appointment of colored officers in the service of the United States is the result of the action of the people.

Abolitionism Becoming Republican.

Abolitionism, as defined by the Republicans, is the policy of the United States, and is the policy of the country. The Republicans are the party in power, and the policy of the Republicans is the policy of the country. The Republicans are the party in power, and the policy of the Republicans is the policy of the country.

View of an Emigrant Ship.

The emigrant ship is the means of conveying the people from one country to another. The emigrant ship is the means of conveying the people from one country to another. The emigrant ship is the means of conveying the people from one country to another.

Our English Friends Interviewed.

Our English friends are our friends, and we are glad to have them as our friends. Our English friends are our friends, and we are glad to have them as our friends. Our English friends are our friends, and we are glad to have them as our friends.