Page of Oppression.

Selections.

DANIEL CHERRY AND SLAVERY.

The following are portions of a letter from Mr. Daniel Cherry, of Kentucky, to his son, then in the army: "Our country is as free as it was when the Constitution was adopted. We have no interference with religion, and our rights are protected by the law. The negroes are treated as inferior beings, and have no property rights. They are subjected to the will of the master, and have no recourse to the law. The government is tyrannical, and the people are oppressed."