THE LIBERATOR.

JOHN BROWN MURDERED AT MARYVILLE.

A jail, relied on by a majority of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, for the protection of the law, was broken into by marauding bands, and John Brown, its occupant, was murdered, according to the fulsome promises made by the members of the Free State movement, who were present at the breaking of the jail, which was the signal for the incitement of the violence of these bands.

The murder was committed by a party of desperadoes, who, under the guise of popular action, had been preparing for the murder of John Brown for some time past. The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.

The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.

The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.

The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.

The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.

The jail was surrounded by a large body of men, who, under the leader of a man named Brown, had been acting as a band of desperadoes, and had been engaged in the destruction of the property of the citizens of the Territory of Kansas, and had been the cause of much suffering and loss to the inhabitants of the Territory.