Page 1
THE LIBERATOR.

FOUR PLACES OF AMERICA.

The People of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

A letter from Anna R. Dickinson.

Mr. Dean Payson.

[Article discussing the political and social issues of the time, focusing on the British and their policies towards Ireland.]

THE DUTY OF THE HOUSE.

A letter from Anna R. Dickinson.

[Further discussion on the political matters, including a letter from Anna R. Dickinson expressing her views on the British policies and their impact on Ireland.]

ANTHILL FEVER.

[Article on the anthill fever, its spread, causes, and preventive measures.]
THE LIBERATOR.

THE LATE JOHN HOPPER.

ADDRESS TO ANNUAL MEETING AT HIS FUNERAL.

My friends, I stand this evening as a messenger of death to announce the passing of a great and good man. John Hopper has just gone to his rest. But it was a rest of the best kind — a rest for the soul. It was the rest of the Christian, the rest of the humble and obedient follower of the Master. It was the rest of the true and faithful servant of the Lord. It was the rest of the man who had done his work on earth and was now ready to go to his Master in heaven.

John Hopper was a man of many parts. He was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of God. He was a man of thought, and yet he was a man of action. He was a man of the people, and yet he was a man of the church. He was a man of the past, and yet he was a man of the future. He was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of the spirit.

John Hopper was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of God. He was a man of thought, and yet he was a man of action. He was a man of the people, and yet he was a man of the church. He was a man of the past, and yet he was a man of the future. He was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of the spirit.

John Hopper was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of God. He was a man of thought, and yet he was a man of action. He was a man of the people, and yet he was a man of the church. He was a man of the past, and yet he was a man of the future. He was a man of the world, and yet he was a man of the spirit.