Lincoln, true to the broad principle which he espoused in his speeches, is a man of peace, but not a critic of evil. He has no desire to overthrow or to destroy Missouri, but to save the nation. This is his object. This is his mission. He will not undertake to save Missouri by robbing it of its property or its liberty or its institutions. He will not do it. But if Missouri be guilty of lawless violence, he will not stand aside and let her violate the laws of the Union and the Constitution of the country. If she will not obey the laws, she will be made to obey them. If she will not pay her debts, she will be forced to pay them. If she will not support the Constitution, she will be forced to support it. If she will not submit to the abstract and general will of the people, she will be made to submit to it. If she will not obey the laws, she will be forced to obey them. If she will not care for the rights of others, she will be forced to care for them. If she will not respect the property of others, she will be forced to respect it. If she will not support the Federal Government, she will be forced to support it. If she will not respect the authority of the President, she will be forced to respect it. If she will not obey the laws, she will be forced to obey them. If she will not pay her debts, she will be forced to pay them. If she will not support the Constitution, she will be forced to support it. If she will not submit to the abstract and general will of the people, she will be made to submit to it. If she will not obey the laws, she will be forced to obey them. If she will not care for the rights of others, she will be forced to care for them. If she will not respect the property of others, she will be forced to respect it. If she will not support the Federal Government, she will be forced to support it. If she will not respect the authority of the President, she will be forced to respect it. If she will not obey the laws, she will be forced to obey them.
The American Freeman and Correspondent.

American Freedmen and Correspondents.

The American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The American Academy of Arts and Sciences has recently adopted a new set of by-laws, which provide for the election of members from among the residents of the United States. The Academy is composed of about 500 members, and its object is to promote the study of literature, science, and the arts. The by-laws provide for the election of members from among the residents of the United States, and the Academy has recently issued a call for applications for membership. The Academy is composed of about 500 members, and its object is to promote the study of literature, science, and the arts.

Lettet From the Western.

Washington, D.C., June 4, 1868.

Frederick Douglass, Ed.

Our attention has been called to the following interesting correspondence in the New York Tribune:

We have had missionaries from the American Missionary Association, who have preached to the negroes in the bird, and have also taken the Bible to them. They have also been preaching in the black churches, and have also been preaching in the black churches.

The letter is signed by M. F. Brown and J. W. Jones, and is dated June 4, 1868.

FREDERICK DOUGLASS.

Petroleum Stone.

The most wonderful discovery of the day.

The petroleum stone, a new and wonderful material, has been discovered in the United States. The stone is composed of a fine, white, and translucent substance, and is said to be capable of being used for various purposes, such as filters for water, and for the preparation of various liquids. The stone is said to be of great value, and is rapidly gaining in popularity.

Washington, D.C., June 4, 1868.

Dr. H. B. Garnett.

The letter is signed by Dr. H. B. Garnett, and is dated June 4, 1868.