THE LIBERATOR.

Volume XXII.

Boston, Friday, November 24, 1854.

THE EIGHTH QUARTER.

The season is fast closing, and the year drawing to its close. The natural instinct of mankind is to look forward with wonder and interest to the coming year, to see what events are in store for us, and to adapt ourselves to the changed circumstances of our lives. It is a time of hope and expectation, and the spirit of improvement in the affairs of man is at its height.

THE ABOLITIONISTS AND THEIR INEBRITENTS

Three years ago Abolitionists and their friends were watched with suspicion by the government, and their meetings were called by the generals, and their proceedings closely watched. But now, thanks to the emigration, the government has lost its power, and the Abolitionists are free to pursue their work without interference.

THE SOUTHERN DILEMMA.

The South is in a state of alarm. The cotton crop is failing, and the price of cotton is falling. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair.

THE REVOLT OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The southern states are in a state of insurrection. The southern states are in a state of insurrection.

THE EIGHTH QUARTER.

The season is fast closing, and the year drawing to its close. The natural instinct of mankind is to look forward with wonder and interest to the coming year, to see what events are in store for us, and to adapt ourselves to the changed circumstances of our lives. It is a time of hope and expectation, and the spirit of improvement in the affairs of man is at its height.

THE ABOLITIONISTS AND THEIR INEBRITENTS

Three years ago Abolitionists and their friends were watched with suspicion by the government, and their meetings were called by the generals, and their proceedings closely watched. But now, thanks to the emigration, the government has lost its power, and the Abolitionists are free to pursue their work without interference.

THE SOUTHERN DILEMMA.

The South is in a state of alarm. The cotton crop is failing, and the price of cotton is falling. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair.

THE REVOLT OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The southern states are in a state of insurrection. The southern states are in a state of insurrection.

THE EIGHTH QUARTER.

The season is fast closing, and the year drawing to its close. The natural instinct of mankind is to look forward with wonder and interest to the coming year, to see what events are in store for us, and to adapt ourselves to the changed circumstances of our lives. It is a time of hope and expectation, and the spirit of improvement in the affairs of man is at its height.

THE ABOLITIONISTS AND THEIR INEBRITENTS

Three years ago Abolitionists and their friends were watched with suspicion by the government, and their meetings were called by the generals, and their proceedings closely watched. But now, thanks to the emigration, the government has lost its power, and the Abolitionists are free to pursue their work without interference.

THE SOUTHERN DILEMMA.

The South is in a state of alarm. The cotton crop is failing, and the price of cotton is falling. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair.

THE REVOLT OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The southern states are in a state of insurrection. The southern states are in a state of insurrection.

THE EIGHTH QUARTER.

The season is fast closing, and the year drawing to its close. The natural instinct of mankind is to look forward with wonder and interest to the coming year, to see what events are in store for us, and to adapt ourselves to the changed circumstances of our lives. It is a time of hope and expectation, and the spirit of improvement in the affairs of man is at its height.

THE ABOLITIONISTS AND THEIR INEBRITENTS

Three years ago Abolitionists and their friends were watched with suspicion by the government, and their meetings were called by the generals, and their proceedings closely watched. But now, thanks to the emigration, the government has lost its power, and the Abolitionists are free to pursue their work without interference.

THE SOUTHERN DILEMMA.

The South is in a state of alarm. The cotton crop is failing, and the price of cotton is falling. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair.

THE REVOLT OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The southern states are in a state of insurrection. The southern states are in a state of insurrection.

THE EIGHTH QUARTER.

The season is fast closing, and the year drawing to its close. The natural instinct of mankind is to look forward with wonder and interest to the coming year, to see what events are in store for us, and to adapt ourselves to the changed circumstances of our lives. It is a time of hope and expectation, and the spirit of improvement in the affairs of man is at its height.

THE ABOLITIONISTS AND THEIR INEBRITENTS

Three years ago Abolitionists and their friends were watched with suspicion by the government, and their meetings were called by the generals, and their proceedings closely watched. But now, thanks to the emigration, the government has lost its power, and the Abolitionists are free to pursue their work without interference.

THE SOUTHERN DILEMMA.

The South is in a state of alarm. The cotton crop is failing, and the price of cotton is falling. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair. The southern states are in a state of confusion and despair.

THE REVOLT OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The southern states are in a state of insurrection. The southern states are in a state of insurrection.