The Liberator

Boston, Friday, December 1, 1865

The Last Quarter

The Liberator is now in its last quarter, prior to the close of the year. During the quarter, the time when its mission of exposing the enormities and melanges of our system of slavery and the slaveholders and their agents, has been full with every matter that will command attention of the world. We have seen the end of the year and the beginning of the new one, with a sense of national and international duties, and of the duties to ourselves, in the service of the country.

Jamaica as an Example

We must begin our quarterly address with the announcement that the quarter has been marked by the retirement of the late President of the United States. In his address to the people of the country, he has expressed his regret at the passing of the quarter, and the necessity of refunding to the people of the country, in the name of the country.

Mr. Garrison and the Liberator

The last of the quarter we will now consider. It is during the last of the quarter, that the President has been called to address the people of the country, in the name of the country. He has expressed his regret at the passing of the quarter, and the necessity of refunding to the people of the country, in the name of the country.
